

Article from the Leeds University Students' Newspaper
from 29 November 1968

Art for Viet-Nam

The Parkinson Court has been taken over this week by the Staff Vietnam Committee.

They are exhibiting a selection of paintings donated to them by local artists, which will be sold to provide funds for a new hospital in NAM DINH, North Vietnam, to replace the one completely destroyed by American bombing.

The paintings range from the semi-amateur to the striking work of Stass Paraskos, a lecturer at Leeds College of Art. The exhibition will continue over the weekend.